

SKI-MOUNTAINEERING IN ICELAND

Ski-mountaineering program at the Troll peninsula, Iceland

Iceland's landscape is contagious.

Iceland is one of the most northern countries in Europe, with spectacular coastal mountains and which is rapidly becoming a mecca for mountain skiing.

The Troll or "Trollaskagi" mountains are located on the peninsula of the same name between the West Fjords and those of eastern Iceland and rise to 1400 meters. Although the mountains are not particularly high, they receive many snowfalls being below the Arctic Circle. Many of the rugged mountains have small glaciers, which allow you to ski until you touch the sea.

Iceland is on the spine of the Mid-Atlantic, and scientists call it "geologically active," which results in many volcanoes and active geysers.

What a fantastic way to end the ski season, making perfect turns in the Icelandic snow under the midnight sun and skiing in the Arctic Ocean. Can you imagine it? Well, come with us to always remember and do not stay in imagination!
